

Invertigo Dance Theatre's New Executive Director David Mack

We are so thrilled to announce that Invertigo has a new Executive Director. Please join us in welcoming David Mack to the Invertigo team!

He comes to us with a decade of experience managing innovative, Los Angeles based opera, theatre, and dance companies. David recently served as Strategic Director for Heidi Duckler Dance, a 34-year-old company that has produced over 300 works in LA and around the world and recently became the first LA dance company to receive a National Endowment for the Arts Our Town grant for Move Well @ MLK in Willowbrook, CA. Previously, he worked with Yuval Sharon as Managing Director of The Industry and General Manager of the Invisible Cities opera in Union Station. As a consultant, his clients have included the City of West Hollywood, Center Theatre Group, L.A. Dance Project and DIAVOLO | Architecture in Motion.

"The arts in LA are currently undergoing an exciting transformation, and LA dance is experiencing a new renaissance as one of the drivers of this change," says David. "I am humbled and honored to be invited to join such a joyous and dynamic organization, which is at the forefront of this fascinating new chapter in LA's cultural and artistic history. I look forward to working with the Invertigo team to share compelling stories and promote cultural equity throughout our city and around the country.”

As the new Executive Director, David will partner with Laura Karlin, our Artistic Director, to lead the organization into its second decade of presenting dance theatre programming in Los Angeles and beyond. His term is set to begin on February 4, 2019. To learn more about David, please click here.

"Dave's passion, dedication, and leadership will be a wonderful addition to our team," says Karlin. "I am so glad to be working with my new partner in crime, and I believe that we can create a marvelous future for Invertigo together."
